Social Participation: new mechanisms for the challenges of public management

Venue: Biennale Foundation, Plenary B

14:00 – 15:30

In the last 20 years, national policies and plans have established several guidelines to introduce citizens' participation in the public sector's decision making. In practical terms, however, progress has been a lot slower. New mechanisms of stakeholder engagement are needed, but many other encouragement and mobilization actions – both aimed at civil society and the public sector – should be taken
